Vox ego sum simplex, tenuiq; canenda labore,
Hinc mea conueniens carmina nomen habent.
Vtq; ego, sic facili resonant modulamine cantus,
Quos breuis hic omni parte libellus habet.
Hi tibi quisquis amas Musarum sacra placebunt,
Seu quia dulce canunt, seu quia sacra canunt.

MARTINVS LVTHER MVSICAE STVDIOSIS.

SALVTEM IN CHRISTO. Vellem certe ex animo laudatum, & omnibus commendatum esse donum illud diuinum & excellentissimum Musicam, Sed ita obruor multitudine & magnitudine virtutis & bonitatis eius, vt neq; initium neq; finem, neq; modum orationis inuenire queam, & cogar in summa copia laudum, ieiunus & inops esse laudator. Quis enim omnia complectatur? Atq; si velis omnia complecti, nihil complexus videare, Primum, si rem ipsam spectes, inuenies Musicam esse ab initio mundi inditam seu concreatam creaturis vniuersis, singulis & omnibus, Nihil enim est sine sono, seu numero sonoro, ita, vt & aer ipse per sese inuisibilis & inpalpabilis, omnibusq; sensibus inperceptibilis, minimeq; omnium musicus, sed plane mutus & nihil reputatus, tamen motus sit sonorus & audibilis, tunc etiam palpabilis, mirabilia in hoc significante spiritu mysteria, de quibus hic non est locus dicendi, Sed mirabilior est Musica in animantibus, præsertim volucribus, vt Musicissimus ille Rex, & diuinus psaltes Dauid, cum ingenti stupore & exultante spiritu, prædicit mirabilem illam volucrum peritiam & certitudinem canendi, dicens Psalmo centesimo tertio, Super ea volucres cœli habitant, de medio ramorum dant voces.

Verum ad humanam vocem, omnia sunt prope immusica, tanta est optimi Creatoris in hac vna re supereffusa & incomprehensibilis munificentia & sapientia, Sudarunt Philosophi, vt intelligerent hoc mirabile artificium vocis humanæ, quo modo tam leui motu linguæ, leuioriq; aduluc motu gutturis, pulsus aer, funderet illam infinitam varietatem & articulationem vocis & verborum, pro arbitrio animæ gubernantis, tam potenter & vehementer, vt per tanta interuallaloco-rum, circulariter ab omnibus, distincte, non solum audiri, sed & intelligi possit, Sed sudant tantum, nunc inueniunt, & cum admiratione desinunt in stuporem, Quin nulli adhuc reperti sunt, qui definire & statuere potuerint, quid sit ille sibilus & alphabetum quoddam vocis humanæ, seu materia prima, nempe Risus (de fletu nihil dicam) Mirantur, sed non complectuntur. Verum hæc speculabilia de infinita sapientia Dei, in hac vna creatura, relinquamus melioribus & ociosioribus, nos vix gustum attingimus.

De vsu tantæ rei dicere hic oportuit, Sed & ille ipse sua infinita varietate & vtilitate, longe superat omnium eloquentissimorum eloquentissimam eloquentiam. Hoc vnum possumus nunc afferre, Quod experientia testis est, Musicam esse vnam, quæ post verbum Dei merito celebrari debeat, domina & gubernatrix affectuum humanorum (de bestijs nunc tacendum est) quibus tamen ipsi homines, ceu a suis dominis, gubernantur & sæpius rapiuntur. Hac laude Musicæ, nulla maior potest (a nobis quidem) concipi. Siue enim velis tristes erigere, siue lætos terrere, desperantes animare, superbos frangere, amantes sedare, odientes mitigare, & quis omnes illos numeret dominos cordis humani, scilicet affectus & impetus seu spiritus, impulsores omnium vel virtutum vel vitiorum m? Quid inuenias efficatius quam ipsam Musicam? Honorat eam ipse Spiritus sanctus, ceu sui proprij officij organum, dum in scripturis suis sanctis testatur, dona sua per eam Prophetis illabi, id est omnium virtutum affectus, vt in Eliseo videre est, Rursus per eandem expelli Satanam, id est omnium vitiorum impulsorem, vt in Saule rege Israel, monstratur.

Vnde non frustra, Patres & Prophetæ, verbo Dei nihil voluerunt esse coniunctius quam Musicam, Inde enim tot Cantica & Psalmi, in quibus simul agunt & sermo & vox in animos auditoris ditoris, dum in cæteris animantibus & corporibus, sola musica sine sermone gesticulatur. Denique homini soli prę cęteris, sermo voci copulatus, donatus est, vt sciret, se Deum laudare oportere verbo & Musica, scilicet sonora prædicatione, & mixtis verbis suaui melodiæ. Iam si comparationem feceris inter ipsos homines, videbis quam multiplex & varius sit Creator gloriosus in donis Musicę dispertitis, quantum differat homo ab homine in voce & verbo, vt alius alium mirabiliter excellat, negant enim, posse duos homines inueniri, similis per omnia vocis & loquelę, etiam si sæpius imitati alij alios videantur, velut alij aliorum simię.

Vbi autem tandem accesserit studium & Musica artificialis, quę naturalem corrigat, excolat & explicet, Hic tandem gustare cum stupore licet (sed non comprehendere) absolutam & perfectam sapientiam Dei, in opere suo mirabili Musicę, in quo genere, hoc excellit, quod vna & eadem voce canitur suo tenore pergente, pluribus interim vocibus circum circa mirabiliter ludentibus, exultantibus & iucundissimis gestibus eandem ornantibus, & velut iuxta eam diuinam quandam choream ducentibus, vt ijs, qui saltem modico afficiuntur, nihil mirabilius hoc seculo, extare videatur, Qui vero non afficiuntur, nę illi vere amusi & digni sunt, qui aliquem Merdipoetam interim audiant, vel porcorum Musicam.

Sed res est maior, quam vt hac breuitate vtilitates eius describi queant, Tu inuenis optime, commendatam hanc nobilem, salutarem & lætam creaturam tibi habeas, qua & tuis affectibus interim medearis contra turpes libidines & prauas societates, Deinde assuescas in hac creatura, Creatorem agnoscere & laudare, Et deprauatos animos, qui hac pulcherima & natura & arte abuntur, ceu impudici poetę, ad suos insanos amores, & summo studio caueto & vitato, certus, PRAEFATIO.

℣ Diabolus eos rapiat contra naturam, vt quæ hoc dono vult & debet Deum solum laudare autorem, isti adulterini filij, rapina ex dono Dei facto, colunt eodem hostem Dei & aduersarium naturę & artis huius iucundissimę, Bene in Domino vale.
